

I am outraged that ABC was prohibited from airing 'Saving Private Ryan' on November 11, 2004- Veteran's Day.

The film is an honest depiction of war-related actions and beliefs. We, as a society, need to be reminded of what our fathers and grandfathers have gone through. Let us not forget what our husbands, brothers and, in many cases, fathers are currently going through.

It's not pretty, life isn't always pretty and censorable. I find it appalling that many have used the recent political hot button of morality to justify such actions. I do not find this film to be obscene or amoral.

Let's use some perspective shall we?
